

F.A.Q. “Proroga” – 3 months paid extension of the deadline for the thesis submission – PhD students 34° cycle

This 3 months extension foreseen by Italian law is paid if you are holding a scholarship (please read the following FAQ).

1. Does the extension (“proroga”) only allow a postponement of the thesis submission or does it allow also an extension of the time required to complete the theoretical courses required by the Ph.D. Course?

The “proroga” implies an extension of the deadline for the submission of the thesis, but it does not modify the legal duration of the Ph.D. Course. This means that the “proroga” only implies an extension of the time granted to write the thesis. It does not include extra time for academic activities. The possibility of organizing any exams during the months of extension by the Ph.D. Course is up to the Course itself. For any inquiries, please contact the Coordinator of the Ph.D.

2. Does the granting of the extension also involve a postponement of the PhD defence?

Yes, the extension entails a delay of the deadline for submitting the thesis and consequently shifts forward also the date for the defence.

The time schedule for the 34th cycle is published at the following webpage: <https://www.unipd.it/dottorato/esame-finale-consegna-tesi-dottorati>
