Joint supervision agreements
("cotutelle de thèse")

What

- A joint supervision or cotutelage of doctoral thesis (from the French word "cotutelle", since the program originated in France) is conducted within the framework of an agreement signed between the University of Padova and an international partner university.

- Such agreement regulates:

  - enrolment → admission, fees, duration of the doctoral program, possible extension, name of the Ph.D. course at each institution

  - research work → research field, thesis topic, language of thesis and defence, funding of studies, supervisors, mobility scheduling

  - thesis evaluation → examination board, defence, degree(s) awarded, diploma(s) issued
This collaboration requires the Ph.D. student to be enrolled in both partner universities and to carry out his/her research work at the two institutions for alternate periods (preferably of equivalent duration, and in any case for at least six months) under the joint supervision of two tutors, one for each university.

The cotutelle ends with a single final exam (viva voce) before a committee composed of members from both partner universities, recognized by both institutions, following which the doctoral degree (double or joint diploma) is awarded in both Countries.

Documents needed:

- framework agreement = institutional agreement, through which the two partner universities establish a list of provisions for the creation of a procedure of joint supervision of a doctoral thesis, with the aim of fostering scientific cooperation and promoting the mobility of doctoral students between the universities.

- specific convention = individual agreement for the doctoral student; it is based on what stated in the framework agreement (general provisions) but it refers to a specific candidate, focusing on the research work which will be jointly developed. The document has usually the same template of the f.a., but the content is far more detailed. Particular attention is addressed to the different role of the two institutions:
  - home university, with administrative responsibility
  - host university, that exempts the candidate from admission procedures

The conduct of the research and its contents, the use of materials as well as intellectual property rights are agreed on separately as necessary.
Who

- Requests are usually submitted by doctoral students or supervisors

- Signers of the agreements are:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Framework agreement</th>
<th>Specific convention</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Rector</td>
<td>The Rector</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(The Coordinator of the Ph.D. Course)</td>

</tr>
<tr>

<td>The supervisor</td>
</tr>
<tr>

<td>The doctoral student</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
When

- Ask for the cotutelle as soon as possible, preferably during your first year of Ph.D.:

  * the whole research work should be jointly carried out
  * the partner university might not accept registrations from the 2nd year onwards
  * the procedure may take a lot of time (weeks, months… even years)
Where

- Everywhere, potentially

- With French, Spanish, German, and Swiss universities there’s no need to sign a framework agreement, since a cotutelle can be established on the basis of the agreements with CRUI (the Conference of Italian University Rectors):

  So, the only document needed is the specific convention on behalf of the student

- With universities of other Countries, instead, two docs are required → a framework agreement between the two institutions + the individual convention for the candidate
So far, Unipd has made joint supervisions agreements with 186 universities from 30 different Countries:

- Argentina
- Australia
- Austria
- Belarus
- Belgium
- Brasil
- Canada
- Chile
- China
- France
- Germany
- Ireland
- Kazakhstan
- Luxembourq
- Mexico
- Morocco
- Peru
- Poland
- Portugal
- Romania
- Russia
- Serbia
- South Africa
- Spain
- Switzerland
- The Netherlands
- Tunisia
- United Kingdom
- United States
- Venezuela

...and others - with Algeria, Croatia, Slovakia – will be signed soon (hopefully)
How

In order to establish a cotutelle you have to:

- be enrolled in a doctoral program at the University of Padova (or a foreign University)
- talk to your supervisor about this possibility, get his/her consent
- find a professor in the host university who’s interested in your research work and willing to co-supervise you
- get the approval of the Academic Board of the Ph.D. course
- ask the administrative staff of the partner university about possible fees, deadlines, requirements for the admission/registration, documents to submit
- contact the Ph.D. Office at Unipd and ask for the draft(s) of agreement, which must be filled in and forward to the host institution
- wait for the draft(s) top be defined
- (get the approval of the Academic Senate)
- sign the agreement(s)
- register at the partner university

These steps should be done in this order, but that’s not always possible for the partner university may have different rules. Compromise is accepted, but must be agreed before: don’t go your own way!
Why

- Strategic objective is to increase the level of internationalization of the two partner universities, as well as of the research work
- It encourages the mobility of doctoral students
- One Ph.D. / two doctoral degrees:
  - joint degree = one diploma, signed by both Rectors, is issued by the home university; the doctoral degree is jointly conferred and legally recognised in two Countries
  - double degree = each university issues a diploma confirming the awarding of the degree, in accordance with the regulations in force in that institution
- You can experience the reality of two different academic systems, increase your linguistic and intercultural skills, gain new research competencies
- It brings added value to the doctoral thesis and enhances the quality of the research
Why not

- You have to enroll also in the host university, which however may not exempt you from tuition fees (and the amount required can be substantial).

- At least 6 months must be spent at the partner institution: part of the living costs may be charged to you.

- Cotutelle is not a 2for1: being awarded two doctoral degrees implies meeting the requirements of two universities (different regulations, procedures, deadlines): get ready for a lot of stress!
Things to watch out for

- You must respect what stated in the agreement: check it carefully before signing, for any modification requires an avenant (signed addendum).

- Follow Unipd regulations, first of all, even (especially!) when they are different from the ones in force at the host institution.

- Be patient, and don’t take it for granted: notwithstanding a long negotiation the agreement may not go through, because of incompatible rules.
Thank you for your attention!
