Course Title and Description

New challenges in the diagnosis and intervention of Attention Deficit and Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD)

The project aims at increasing the internationalization of the Master degree course in Developmental and educational psychology, particularly the course Learning difficulties and disabilities: education, instruction and habilitation with the collaboration of the University of Gent. The contents of the course will be complemented by the seminars by prof. Roeyers on internationally consolidated evidence-based intervention methods. Seminars on Attention Deficit and Hyperactivity Disorder will be delivered as a blended course (4 hours in class and 2 hours online) as practical activities and training: Students will be presented with scientific articles and they will have to read them before class in order to promote the discussion. During the 2 hour online activity students will be involved in the practical activities which will allow them to apply the new knowledge.
