Course Title and Description	DIVERSITY BEYOND THE LANDSCAPE. Excellencies and challenges of the Prosecco Hills UNESCO World Heritage site The Winter School unites distance learning and field experience in an innovative way. The multidimensional study of bio-environmental, agronomical and socio-cultural issues linked to the site of the Prosecco Hills of Conegliano and Valdobbiadene is developed via cross-media didactic modules (video, podcast, gallery, digital maps, drones etc.) that combine field missions (which include meetings with stakeholders and experts) with distance learning in connection with students and professors engaged in similar activities in other Universities. The Schools aims to promote a “challenge-based” didactic approach based on an intense exchange among students, professors, local experts and institutions. The activity will focus on the concept of ‘diversity’. The didactic activity consists of virtual and open air lectures with the possibility to record the experience with the creation of cross-media contents. There will be 4 modules of 12 hours, as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none">- 2 hours: keynote speech (conceptual introduction)- 2 hours: introduction of the case study- 6 hours: field mission- 2 hours: briefing and cross-media content production The topics of the modules are 4 and they will be compared and confronted from an interdisciplinary point of view: <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Natural diversity- Agronomic diversity- Social diversity- Cultural diversity Students, according to their disciplinary field, will have to choose to attend to at least 2 module and to elaborate cross-media contents.
