ICPU - Food and health in a circular and sustainable economy

This project aims to support and integrate the activities of the ICPU 2021, which is organized and provided jointly with the University of Sydney. Via a tutor the project aims to strengthen didactic and educational aspects that will be delivered in virtual mode through innovative methodologies and approaches.

During the course, the tutor will be involved in the following activities:

- i) organization, support and monitoring of distance teaching;
- ii) interface between ICPU students and professors;
- iii) support students who need specific information on the organization of courses;
- iv) technical support on the use of information systems (databases, search engines, bibliographic research) and encouragement of exchanges and discussion during group activities.

The company involved in the presentation and the deepening of soft skills will give a three-hour lecture. During the lecture, interactive presentation and communication instruments will be used in order to involve participants and make them an active part in the learning process. Industrial partners will be involved repeatedly through lectures.
